Conduct thorough physical exams and review patient histories to determine diagnoses.
Prescribe medications, therapies, and other medical treatments as appropriate.
Monitor patient progress and make necessary adjustments to treatment plans.
Order and interpret diagnostic tests, including blood tests, imaging studies, and screenings.
Provide counseling and health education to patients on disease prevention, healthy lifestyles, and treatment options.
Refer patients to specialists when necessary and coordinate care for complex cases.
Maintain accurate and detailed medical records for all patients, ensuring confidentiality and compliance with legal and ethical standards.
Stay up-to-date with the latest medical research, practices, and advancements in healthcare.

Qualifications

Education:

Medical degree (MD or DO).
Completion of internship and residency in the relevant specialty.
Licensure:
Board-certified or board-eligible in the relevant specialty.
Valid and active medical license in [Country/Region].
Experience:
Previous experience in clinical practice is preferred, with expertise in [specific area, e.g., general practice, pediatrics, surgery, etc.].
Experience in hospital or outpatient settings is a plus.

Job Benefits

Competitive salary with potential for bonuses and incentives.
Health insurance, dental, and vision coverage.
Paid time off (vacation, sick leave, holidays).
Retirement savings plans.
Continuing medical education (CME) opportunities.
Opportunities for career advancement and professional development.
Supportive and collaborative work environment.
